

Aperture Angle vs. Aperture Luminous Gain

Shows how much luminance (brightness) increases with decreasing aperture angle.
This is important when high intensity, but not necessarily high quantity of light is desired.
Mostly desired in scanner applications.